"GAY" NEWS.
Farmers Can Ride and Plow,
BY SECURING ONE OF THE
"GAY" PLOWS,
Manufactured and sold for the very low price of $65 and $75.

THE simplicity and practicality of this new Plow commends it favorably to the special notice of every farmer. It possesses a decided superiority over all other plows now in use. The wheels are four feet in diameter, and run on the unplowed land. Its entire construction is in no way complicated. The plow is managed in every manner with ease, and requires only two levers to be used in making any alteration. The superiority of the "Gay" Plow will be clearly shown by the following conditions:

We, the undersigned, citizens of Linn county, Oregon, having purchased and used upon our farms the "Gay" Plow, hereby certify that the same has given us entire satisfaction. Its facility for adjusting to suit the depth of furrow without moving from the seat, is simple and easy. We like the plow for its draught, because the same is brought to bear directly upon the plow-beam instead of the carriage; also, because it is strong and durable, all except the wood-work being constructed of wrought iron—no castings are used. The wheels running upon the solid land is an advantage over other gang-plows, in striking off land and in plowing, not having to make the necessary changes in the machinery, and the seat is always level, not the wing the driver forward or sideways as in other plows. Better work and more of it can be accomplished by the use of this Plow than by hand.

We take pleasure in recommending the "Gay" Plow to our brother farmers, as one having no superior in Oregon.

The Albany Register.

U. S. Official Paper for Oregon.
SATURDAY, JULY 30, 1870.

The War in Europe.

A few facts in relation to the two great powers now engaged in bloody war, Prussia and France, may not be uninteresting to our readers at this time. The origin of the present war can be traced back to the conflict between Prussia and Austria in 1866. Count Bismarck, by a series of bold and rapid movements, threw the Prussian army into the enemy's country and before the Austrians were fully aware of his intentions, the Prussian army had won the battle of Sadowa, and King William saw his territory at once enlarged by the acquisition of Hanover and other refractory States. This put Prussia at once at the head of the North German Confederation, which includes the larger and more powerful part of all the German dominion. Thus Germany suddenly became a formidable power, while before it had been split into a number of small principalities, without influence or unity of action. The new Constitution of North Germany was drawn up by Prussia in 1867, and adopted the same year by a Parliament elected by universal suffrage, at the rate of one member for every 100,000 inhabitants. According to this new charter, the States of Prussia, Saxony, Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Oldenburg, Brunswick, Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, Saxe-Weimar, Mecklenburg-Strelitz, Saxe-Meiningen, Anhalt, Saxe-Altenburg, Waldeck, Lippe-Detmold, Schwartzburg-Rudolstadt, Schwartzburg-Sondershausen, Reuss-Schleiz, Reuss-Greiz, Schaumburg-Lippe, Hamburg, Lubeck and Bremen have been formed into a Union, for the protection of the territory of the Union and its laws, as well as for the care and welfare of the German people. The total area of these States is 160,207 square miles, and the population about 29,910,377.

By the new Constitution of North Germany, the Legislative power is exercised by a Federal Council and Parliament. They control the customs, commercial regulations, coinage of money, weights and measures, railways, roads, postal and telegraphic services, etc. The Federal Council forms the representation of the various Governments. Its votes are divided thus: Prussia, 17; Saxony, 4; Mecklenburg-Schwerin, 2; Brunswick, 2; all other States, 1 each, making a total of 43 votes. The Presidency of the Federation belongs to the Prussian crown. The King of Prussia acts on behalf of the Federation in its intercourse with foreign States, he declares war or concludes peace, and he appoints the Embassadors. The Federal Council is presided over by a Chancellor of the Federation, appointed by the King of Prussia. This Council and Parliament assemble every year. The Parliament is elected by universal suffrage, direct for three years, and in case of dissolution, a new election must take place within sixty days. The naval forces of the Northern and Baltic seas are placed under the supreme command of Prussia. Every North German is liable to service, and no substitution is allowed. The strength of the Federal army on a peace footing is one per cent. of the population. All the troops form one army, under the command of the King of Prussia. Changes in the Constitution can only be voted in Parliament and the Federal Council, by a two thirds majority. The charter provides, finally, that negotiations shall be entered into with the Southern States to arrive at a settlement of new relations, and, if possible, to complete the union between the Northern and German empire. Bismarck is the Federal Council.

The increase of Germany's power was a thorn in the side of Napoleon, who had encouraged Austria in the war of 1866, because he exercised a great influence over the Emperor, Francis Joseph, and he hoped to extend that influence over all Germany, if Austria should prove successful in the struggle. The French Emperor had no chance to vent his spite during the years since then until now; his little affair with Mexico was a failure, and he saw the necessity of restoring his prestige by a foreign war, and he seized upon the Spanish throne question as being just the thing with which to pick a quarrel with his old enemy. As soon, therefore, as it was announced that Gen. Prim, in the name of his nation, had offered the crown of Spain to Prince Leopold of Prussia, Napoleon sent a message to King William of Prussia, demanding immediate withdrawal of Leopold from the candidature, and non-interference of the King on the subject. Prussia taking no notice of this demand on the stand store in Syracuse, the old man came around one day, and says he:

TABLE TURNED.—When I used to

"Boys, the one that sells the most 'twixt now and Christmas gets a vast pattern as a present."

Maybe I didn't work for that vast pattern! I tell you there was some tall stories told in praise of goods just about that time; but the tallest talker, and the one that had more cheek than any of us, was a certain Jonah Squires, who roomed with me. He could take a dollar out of a man's pocket when the man only intended to spend a sixpence, and the women—Lord bless you!—they just handed over their pocket-books to him, and let him lay out what he liked for them. One night Jonah woke me up with:

"By Jo, old fellow, if you think that ere's got any cotton in it I'll bring down the sheep that it was cut from, and make him swear to his wool! Two'n't wear out either; wore a pair of pants that that stuff five years, and they are as good now as when I first put them on. Take it at thirty cents, and I will say you don't owe me anything. Eh, too dear? Well, call it twenty-eight cents. What'd y'e say? Shall I tear it? All right; it is a bargain!"

I could feel Jonah's hand playing about the bed clothes for an instant, then rip! tear! went something or other, and I hid my head under the blankets, perfectly convulsed with laughter, and sure that Jonah had torn the best sheet from top to bottom.

When I awoke next morning I found —alas! unkindest cut of all—that the back of my night shirt was split from tail to collar band.

A NEW REMEDY.—From Surpria Valley comes the following story of an old fellow who got very jealous because his young wife went to a ball with a good looking fellow, and staid out until broad daylight. The old chap went to a Justice of the Peace and told his story, winding it up with "I want you to help me— for that ar thing has been goin on 'bout long enuf!"

"Well," says the justice, "you can write down to Erks and see if some of the lawyers can't get you a divorce."

"Divorce!" roared the "angry man," "Who the d—l wants a divorce?"

The Justice began to get wrathy. "If you don't want a divorce what the deuce brought you here?"

"Why, I want an injunction to stop further proceedings!"

A SPEAKING AUTOMATON.—A German genius has invented a speaking machine, which is now on exhibition at Leipzig, and is a masterpiece of inventive art. It is in imitation of all the parts of the human organs of speech, executed in India rubber and wood. A keyboard, played like that of a piano, puts the parts in motion, while by a pedal and bellows the required air is sent through the wind pipe. The keyboard has only fourteen keys, representing the sounds of a, o, u, i, j, r, w, f, s, b, g, d, h; other sounds of the alphabet are produced by the movement, and the admission of more or less air. The sounds of m and l are produced by closing the lips and pressing the tongue against the roof of the mouth, etc. The French nasal sounds are produced by a separate contrivance. The laughing, it is said, sounds truly diabolical, and the crowing of a rooster very comical.

The Red sea is said to be the hottest place in the world. The atmosphere for about fifty miles on that sea is steamy and sticky. Everything in the shape of iron or steel about a ship takes on a coat of rust. During the summer months no one travels on the Red sea unless compelled by business or military orders to do so. In the winter and spring the passage is delightful. Yet the navigation in that body of water is always attended with many dangers. The Red sea is long and narrow, with sunken rocks and projecting reefs, and counter winds prevail, which produce dangerous currents. There are three light houses in the sea, which must be kept by salamander-like men, since the thermometer runs up to one hundred and twenty degrees in July and approaches ninety in early spring.

Editors do not always think of their smart things on the spur of the moment, but one of them does. New England got in a good repartee the other day. Daniel Pratt, a great bore, came with his customary introduction: "I am the Great American Traveler." "Well, travel!" was the reply he got.

A Massachusetts paper expresses its regret at learning that one of the popular monthly magazines has expired, or "at least lapsed into the quiescence of monogamy."

A Mrs. Jennings, whose husband is serving out a term in the Massachusetts State Prison for robbery, applied to have an interview with him, the other day, but her request was denied, and she went home and died.

The town of Dayton, Nevada, was destroyed by fire on Monday night.

There are two German bars at Portland, Oregon, that think of stopping there a while for safety.

A hunting party from Santa Barbara killed ten deer last week. Game is abundant in that region.

The Joe Walker mine of Kern county has been sold to parties in Los Angeles, and a mill erected.

The smelting furnaces in the Cerro Gordo and Owens Lake mines are running to their full capacity.

Large quantities of freight are arriving at Reno, Nevada, for Virginia City and other points near there.

The gates of Heaven are low-arched; we must enter upon our knees.

Incendiary fires are of frequent occurrence at Sacramento.
